The Collect.

O Lord and Master, may our fervent adoration rise ever before you like incense, until the light of our love becomes one with your infinite light, o glorious one who lives and reigns with the Father and the Holy Spirit, one God throughout all ages of ages. Amen.

The Epistle for the 10th Sunday after Trinity is from the writings of Rev. Flower Newhouse, in her book Speak the Word.

Love is endless, deathless, inexhaustible, refined and majestic as our grades are approached and completed. Eventually the earth will have nothing more to teach us, so there shall be no necessity for our return. Realizing this we release our devotion into the sublime consciousness of a freer, fuller and happier life. Our thoughts and prayers shall follow the astral projection of our devotional forms no matter where they journey, for with God there is no division of existence, as we dwell not in other worlds, but in levels or awareness, that are governed by our devotion to God and humanity.

Here Endeth the Epistle.

The Gospel for the 10th Sunday after Trinity is from the Words of Preacher Richard Dulask.

In giving us the ability to love and trust, God has given us great power to free ourselves from entanglements of corrosive emotions. Given time, there is no negative emotion that trust and devotion will not dissolve. Any tension of the future can be erased. As we give our devotion to God, and therefore our trust, we are cleared of all anxieties. Our consciousness is then raised to the level where we are positive, sure, confident, and we are able to function as we were intended to function. Our very consciousness sings with a sense of freedom and lightness. In this freedom state we find there is a higher connection to God, and even greater bonds of trust and devotion develop. This shows that with every step forward in this feeling to God, there is growth in love and spiritual unfolding.

Praise Be to Thee O Christ.
