The Collect

Grant us O Lord, to hold fast within our hearts your love, and that by loving you above all things, we may constantly indulge in all good works; through the Christ our Lord. Amen.

The Epistle for the 13th Sunday after Trinity is from the writings of Annie Kirkwood, in her book Mary's Message to the World.

Another church produced fallacy which is believed on earth, is that there is a heaven and a hell and a purgatory. This could possibly be a better description of how things are after death. Here while in this part of God's creation, where you come after death and before rebirth, all is lived mentally. It is with your thoughts, beliefs, concepts and attitudes that you create your environment. Heaven and hell are simply mental states, both on earth and beyond. What you think is what you have. If you believe you are in heaven, you will find things nice and pleasant. If you believe in fear and hell, you will truly live in fear. The after world is a mental world. That means every thought is visible and brings immediate response. Here you must watch your thoughts. In that world, controlled thought controls your life. On earth your life is also lived by thoughts, but on earth there is a problem of lag time. This confuses people and makes them think things just happen. From your past come decisions or choices which bring on every condition. In every part of God's creation all is ultimately lived from what you carry in your mind and heart.

Here Endeth the Epistle.

The Gospel for the 13th Sunday after Trinity is from the words of Perkins, the occult author.

Mentally each person is at the stage to which they have evolved by their mental faculties. It does not matter if they are a mechanic, writer or a priest, their mental outlook and spiritual content has already paved their way into heaven. We pass into the particular mental level that corresponds precisely to our stage of evolution, and remain oriented there throughout our heaven life. No one can leap beyond themselves mentally here, or in heaven. The richer one's mental and spiritual life on earth has been, the more extensive will be their heritage in heaven. Good work in life will get their reward in higher realms.

Praise Be to Thee O Christ.
